Bits Corp announces development of Die Hard™: Vendetta for Playstation® 2

Bits Corp plc ("Bits" or the "Company"), a leading UK developer of video games software for major console platforms, is pleased to announce that it has signed an agreement with Fox Interactive to develop and co-publish Die Hard™: Vendetta for Sony's Playstation® 2.

In addition, Bits have sold the extended European distribution rights to the game to Vivendi Universal Publishing International SA ("Vivendi"). Vivendi already holds the distribution rights for all other territories including the US and previously published the Nintendo GameCube™ version of the game, also developed by Bits, across the US and Europe. Release of the Playstation 2 game is scheduled for later this year.

The Playstation 2 game has been further developed to include the much awaited multiplayer option with two to four players able to take part in the action. Other additional features have also been included in this version of the game.

Die Hard: Vendetta for Nintendo's Game Cube, distributed by NDA Productions (Europe) and Sierra Entertainment (US), both studios of Vivendi Universal Publishing, was published in November 2002. Industry reviews have been good and early retail sales indications are encouraging.

"We are extremely excited by this enhanced version of Die Hard: Vendetta for Playstation 2, incorporating key additional features, and we anticipate that sales on this platform have the potential to generate further revenues for the Company." says Foo Katan, CEO, Bits.

Dominique Cor, CEO of NDA Productions, says "At NDA, we are very proud of bringing this Playstation 2 game to the market and look forward to it being a great success."
